Subject: Inquiry into RSPCA WA.

To the Enquiry, It appears that there is an element within the RSPCA WA that has deviated away from its intended course. That this element is pursuing a personal agenda and using public funds to that end. We are all sickend when we see pictures of kangaroos, swans and pelicans shot and left to die in public places. This has been illegal for a long time and all that is required is for the police to catch these people and prosecute them under existing legislation. However, it seems that the police have been un successful. So this "element" within the RSPCA has embarked upon a personal campaign to out law all forms of archery, private firearm ownership and recreational hunting. I do not belive that this is within their mandate, nor do I belive it lawful nor ethical to spend public money on a personal campaign. That this "element" is free to lobby parliament ,and the public, upon this matter as individual members of the public only. And at their own expense.

Respectfully yours, Steve Marshall
