

BURGLARY AND ROBBERY OFFENCES - STATISTICS

1729. Mr P.D. Omodei to the Attorney General

For the years 2004-2005 to 2005-2006, I ask -

- (1) How many adults were convicted for burglary offences?
- (2) How many adults were sentenced to a term of imprisonment where burglary was the most serious offence?
- (3) How many adults were convicted for robbery offences?
- (4) How many adults were sentenced to a term of imprisonment where robbery was the most serious offence?

Mr J.A. McGINTY replied:

The following numbers were extracted from the Courts case management systems. A burglary offence was considered to be any offence with an Australian Standard Offence Classification (ASOC) code of 0711 (Unlawful Entry with Intent/Burglary, Break and Enter). A robbery offence was considered to be any offence with an ASOC code of either 0611 (Aggravated Robbery) or 0612 (Non-Aggravated Robbery). Seriousness was based on the ABS Seriousness Indicator.
