

PLANNING COMMISSION, LEGAL CASES

294. Mr McGINTY to the Minister for Planning:

Unlike the nit-picking answer to the last question, will the minister now table a list of cases involving the Planning Commission?

Mr KIERATH replied:

No, I cannot table that information right now but I will attempt to get that information for the member. As I have explained to the House, the example I have given is the worst case scenario. In many cases there are greater benefits than that. Most of the costs involved are not involved in legal costs - damages or any other form - but are involved in compensation to the private property owners concerned.