

Overview of the Bill

The Criminal Law (Unlawful Consorting) Bill 2020 (the Bill) will introduce a consorting offence to disrupt and restrict a convicted offender's ability to associate or communicate with other convicted offenders for the purposes of using or building up organised criminal networks.

The Bill implements the Government's commitment to fight organised crime by criminalising communication and networking between convicted offenders who engage in organised criminal activity.

The Bill is intended to encompass a cohort of convicted offenders which includes child sex offenders, declared drug traffickers (within the meaning of section 32A(1)(c) of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1981) and persons who have been convicted of an indictable offence.

The Bill will provide the Western Australia Police Force with additional powers to enforce the unlawful consorting scheme and provide for the Parliamentary Commissioner for Administrative Investigations, commonly referred to as the Ombudsman, to scrutinise the exercise of these powers.

Part 1: Preliminary

1. Short title

This clause provides that this is the Criminal Law (Unlawful Consorting) Act 2020.

2. Commencement

Paragraph (a) provides that Part 1 comes into operation when the Act receives the Royal Assent. The effect of paragraph (b) is that section 38 will come into operation 12 months after the rest of the Act. Paragraph (c) provides that the rest of the Act will come into operation on a day fixed by proclamation.

3. Terms used

This clause defines the terms used in this Act.

Child sex offence has the meaning in clause 4.

Commissioner of Police means the person holding or acting in the office of Commissioner of Police under the Police Act 1892.

Consort (with another person) means: to seek, or accept, the company of the other person; be in the company of the other person; or to communicate directly or indirectly, with the other person by any means. The expression 'by any means' includes post, facsimile, telephone, email or any other form of electronic communication. Consorting in any of the ways mentioned in the Bill can occur within or outside of Western Australia, including outside Australia. To be 'in the company' indicates a situation where two persons are physically present together and are participating in a common purpose.

Convicted offender means a person who has a conviction for 1 or more of the following: an indictable offence; a child sex offence; an indictable offence against a law of the Commonwealth; an offence against a law of the Commonwealth that, if committed in Western Australia, would constitute a child sex offence; and an offence against the law of another State, Territory or country that, if committed in Western Australia, would constitute an indictable offence or child sex offence.

As noted above, a convicted offender can also be a person who is declared to be a drug trafficker under section 32A(1)(c) of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1981.

Conviction means a finding of guilt, or the acceptance of a plea of guilty, in respect of an offence, whether summarily or on indictment. This does not apply if an offence is committed before a person has reached 18 years of age or if a conviction is spent (a spent conviction is defined in section 3 of the Spent Convictions Act 1988).

Family member has the meaning given in clause 5.

Health service has the meaning given in section 7 of the Health Services Act 2016.

Identifying reference means a prescribed police officer's registered number.

Parliamentary Commissioner means the Parliamentary Commissioner for Administrative Investigations appointed under the Parliamentary Commissioner Act 1971..

Personal details means the person's full name and date of birth; the address where the person is residing; the address where the person usually resides (if different from the address where the person is residing); and the person's business address.

Personal service means serving a document by handing it to the person; or leaving it near the person, if they refuse to accept it, and orally drawing their attention to the document.

Police Force means the Police Force of Western Australia as provided for in the Police Act 1892.

Prescribed officer means a police officer who is, or is acting as, a Commander or an officer of a rank more senior than a Commander. Western Australian Police Force policy will provide that the Commander or more senior officers tasked with the responsibilities of a prescribed officer under the Bill will be the Commander or more senior officer within the unit currently known as State Crime, which includes both serious and organised crime and sex crime. This is in recognition of the purpose of the Bill, which is to disrupt organised crime, rather than to be a broadly used policing tool.

Prescribed service method means by personal service; or delivering the document to a physical or electronic address nominated by the person to be served.

Prisoners Review Board means the Prisoners Review Board as established under section 102 of the Sentence Administration Act 2003.

Record means any record of information, irrespective of how the information is recorded or stored or able to be recovered, and includes: any thing from which images, sounds or writings can be reproduced, with or without the aid of anything else; and any thing on which information is recorded or stored, whether electronically, magnetically, mechanically or by some other means.

Social welfare service includes services provided by governments and charitable organisations for community welfare, financial assistance, housing and temporary accommodation.

Unlawful consorting notice means a notice issued under clause 10(2).

Vehicle has the meaning given in section 3(1) of the Criminal Investigation Act 2006, namely: (a) any thing capable of transporting people or things by air, road, rail or water, irrespective of whether the thing is permanently or semi-permanently stationary, other than a mobile home; or (b) a mobile home that is reasonably suspected not to be permanently or semi-permanently stationary in a single location.

4. Meaning of child sex offence

This clause is intended to replicate the definition of ‘child sex offender’ as defined in section 557K of The Criminal Code, with subclauses (2) and (3) drafted to reflect subsections 557K(2) and (3). This is due to the changing nature of and variations in how sexual offences have been described in legislation over time, to ensure that those offenders convicted of historical child sex offences that may have been described in a different manner to how sexual offences are currently legislated will be encompassed by the definition.

Subclause (1) defines a ‘child sex offence’ to mean an offence listed in Schedule 1. Subclause (2) provides that a reference to Schedule 1 item 1 or 2 to a provision of

The Criminal Code includes a reference to the provision as enacted at any time. Subclause (3) provides that a reference in Schedule 1 item 4 to a provision of The Criminal Code includes a reference to the provision as enacted at any time before it was repealed.

5. Meaning of family member

The Bill provides a defence that a ‘family member’ of a person can seek, accept or be in the other’s company in reasonable circumstances, with subclause (1) listing the relationships that fall within the meaning of ‘family member’.

The purpose of subclause (2) is to extend the definition of family member in subclause (1) to recognise family and kinship structures that exist in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities.

6. Objects of the Act

This clause outlines the objects of the Bill, which are to disrupt and restrict the capacity of persons who have been convicted of an indictable offence, or a child sex offence or who have been declared a drug trafficker under section 32A(1)(c) of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1981, to organise, plan, support or encourage the carrying out of criminal activity.

7. Act binds the Crown

This clause provides that the Bill binds the Crown.

Part 2: Unlawful consorting among convicted offenders

Division 1 – Offences

8. Unlawful consorting with convicted offenders

Subclause (1) creates a new crime of unlawful consorting. The offence arises if an unlawful consorting notice (a notice) is served on the person and, during the period that the notice is in force, the person consorts with a convicted person stated in the notice on two or more occasions. The maximum penalty for the offence is imprisonment for five years. The summary conviction penalty is imprisonment for two years.

Subclause (2) provides that the two or more occasions of consorting need not have occurred with the same convicted offender on each occasion to constitute an offence.

Subclause (3) provides that the prosecution does not need to prove that the consorting occurred for a particular purpose or that the consorting would have led to the commission of an offence.

9. Defences to charge of unlawful consorting

This clause sets out the defences to a charge of unlawful consorting.

Subclause (1) provides that it is a defence to prove that the consorting was between persons who are family members (within the meaning of the term ‘family member’ as set out in clause 5) and that the consorting was reasonable in the circumstances.

Subclause (2)(a) provides that it is a defence to prove that the consorting occurred in the course of one or more of the following and was ‘necessary’ in the circumstances:

- (i) engaging in a lawful occupation, trade or profession;

Explanatory Memorandum
Criminal Law (Unlawful Consorting) Bill 2020

- (ii) attendance at an educational institution to take part in a higher education course registered under section 23 of the Higher Education Act 2004 or an approved VET course as defined in section 5(1) of the Vocational Education and Training Act 1996;
- (iii) receiving a health service or social welfare service;
- (iv) receiving a health service or social welfare service for a person who is dependent upon the person charged for care and support;
- (v) the provision of legal advice;
- (vi) lawful custody;
- (vii) complying with a written law, an order made by a court or tribunal, or any other order, direction or requirement made under a written law;
- (viii) activities undertaken by members of an organisation of employees registered under Part II Division 4 of the Industrial Relations Act 1979 or the Fair Work (Registered Organisations) Act 2009 (Cth), for the purposes of the business of the organisation; or
- (ix) if the person charged is an Indigenous person— fulfilling a cultural practice or obligation of the customary laws or traditions of the Indigenous person's community.

The defendant must prove these defences on the balance of probabilities.

The difference between reasonable in subclause (1) and necessary in subclause (2) recognises that a broader scope of dealings between family members is allowable, whereas consorting in other circumstances is restricted to only what is necessary in those circumstances.

Under subclause (3), consorting is not 'reasonable' or 'necessary' if the purpose of the consorting is to avoid the operation of an unlawful consorting notice or relates to criminal activity.

Division 2 – Unlawful consorting notices

10. Issue of unlawful consorting notice

Subclause (1) provides that the term ‘conduct constituting an indictable offence’ includes conduct engaged in, outside of Western Australia that, if it occurred in Western Australia, would constitute an indictable offence.

Subclause (2) provides that a prescribed officer may issue a notice in respect of a person if three requirements are satisfied. First, the person has reached 18 years of age. Second, the person is a convicted offender who has consorted, or is consorting, with another convicted offender, or who the prescribed officer suspects on reasonable grounds is likely to consort with another convicted offender. Third, the prescribed officer considers that it is appropriate to issue the notice in order to disrupt or restrict the capacity of convicted offenders named in the notice to engage in conduct constituting an indictable offence.

Subclause (3) provides that the notice may be issued for consorting that occurred before, on or after the commencement of clause 10

11. Content of unlawful consorting notice

This clause provides that an unlawful consorting notice must specify the following:

- (a) the name and address of the person on whom the unlawful consorting notice will be served (referred to as the restricted person);
- (b) the name of each convicted offender with whom the restricted person must not consort;
- (c) that consorting on two further occasions may lead to the commission of the offence of unlawful consorting (and that the consorting does not have to occur with the same person on each occasion);
- (d) the date of issue of the notice;

- (e) the name, rank and identifying reference of the prescribed officer who issued the notice;
- (f) that the notice remains in effect on the restricted person for a period of three years from the date of service of the notice, unless revoked sooner; and
- (g) any other matters prescribed in the regulations.

The Bill sets out the minimum content which must be specified in an unlawful consorting notice. However, as contemplated by clause 11(g), additional matters may be prescribed in regulations including, for example, information about the process for applying for revocation of a notice.

12. Service of unlawful consorting notice

Subclause (1) sets out how a notice is to be served on a restricted person, by specifying that a prescribed officer (an officer of, or above, the rank of Commander) must, as soon as practicable after issuing a notice, ensure that a police officer serves the notice on the restricted person, either orally or in writing by personal service.

Personal service is defined in clause 3 as either handing it to the person or, if the person refuses to accept it, leaving it near the person and orally drawing the person's attention to it. This definition of personal service has been adapted from the concept of 'personal service on individuals' as contained in clause 2 of Schedule 2 under the Criminal Procedure Act 2004 but explicitly excludes the personal service method in subclause (2)(c). This is because it is not desirable, given the magnitude of the penalty for the offence of consorting, for service to be effected by serving the notice on a person other than the intended recipient.

Subclause (2) provides that when serving a notice, the police officer must explain to the restricted person, in language that the person is likely to understand, the person's obligations under the notice and the consequences of failing to comply with those obligations.

Subclause (3) provides that a failure to comply with subclause (2) does not invalidate the notice.

Subclause (4) provides that a notice expires if it is not served within two months after it is issued. In such cases, a prescribed officer will be required to issue a new notice.

13. Further service of unlawful consorting notice when served orally

This clause sets out additional steps a police officer must follow if a notice is served orally as set out in clause 12(1)(a) to confirm the notice.

Subclauses (1) and (2) require a police officer, within a period of 72 hours after serving the notice orally, to confirm the notice by serving a written record of the notice that includes the particulars set out in clause 11 by a prescribed service method (i.e. by personal service or by delivering the document to a physical address or electronic address nominated by the person). A police officer is also required to make a record of the particulars confirming that the oral notice was confirmed.

Subclause (3) provides that if an oral notice is not confirmed in accordance with subclauses (1)(a) and (2), then the notice expires 72 hours after it was served orally.

14. Duration of unlawful consorting notice

This clause provides that a notice takes effect when it is served on the restricted person and remains in force for a period of three years from that day, unless it expires in accordance with subclause 13(3) (i.e. an oral notice that is not confirmed within 72 hours) or is revoked sooner under subclause 16(4).

15. Correcting minor errors in unlawful consorting notice

Subclause (1) empowers a prescribed officer to correct a notice if it contains a clerical mistake, an error arising from an accidental slip or omission, or a material mistake in the description of any person, thing or matter referred to in the notice.

Subclause (2) provides that if a correction is made, the prescribed officer must ensure that the restricted person is notified of the correction by a prescribed service method and make a record of the particulars of the correction.

Subclause (3) provides that if a correction is made to a notice under this clause, the notice has the same validity and effect as if the mistake or error had not been made.

16. Revocation of unlawful consorting notice

Subclause (1) provides that a restricted person may apply to the Commissioner of Police to revoke a notice.

Subclause (2) requires such application to be made in writing and during the period that the notice is in force.

Subclause (3) provides that the Commissioner must determine such an application within 60 days after it is made.

Subclause (4) requires the Commissioner of Police to revoke a notice in two situations. First, where the Commissioner is satisfied that the unlawful consorting notice was invalidly issued under clause 10 because the requirements for issuing the notice were not met. Second, where the Commissioner is satisfied that the unlawful consorting notice was validly issued under clause 10 but the requirements for issuing the notice under that section are no longer met due to a change in the circumstances. The Commissioner of Police can revoke a notice on his or her own initiative or after receiving an application from a restricted person. Notice of such a revocation (the revocation notice) must be in writing.

Subclause (5) provides that a revocation notice takes effect when it is made.

Subclause (6) provides that a revocation notice must contain all of the following:

- (a) the name and address of the restricted person;
- (b) details that identify the unlawful consorting notice;

- (c) the date on which the revocation notice was made;
- (d) that the revocation notice takes effect when it is made; and
- (e) any other matters prescribed in the regulations.

Subclause (7) provides that as soon as practicable after making a revocation notice, the Commissioner of Police must serve it on the restricted person by a prescribed service method, or cause it to be so served. The Commissioner of Police must also make a record of the particulars of the revocation notice or cause those particulars to be recorded.

Division 3 – Police powers relevant to unlawful consorting

17. Police powers for things relevant to unlawful consorting

This clause gives a police officer powers in order to serve unlawful consorting notices, including limited powers of detention.

Subclause (1) provides that a police officer, who suspects, on reasonable grounds, that someone is a person on whom an unlawful consorting notice must be served, may do all or any of the following:

- (a) require the person to stop;
- (b) require the person to disclose their personal details;
- (c) require the person to accompany the officer to a police station, or some other place, to serve a notice on the person;
- (d) require the person to remain at a police station, or some other place, for as long as is reasonably necessary, but no longer than two hours, to serve a notice on the person;
- (e) serve a notice on the person;
- (f) if the notice is served orally, confirm the notice under clause 13.

Subclause (2) provides that, for the purposes of exercising the powers in subclause (1), (4) and (6), the police officer may, in respect of a vehicle in which the officer suspects on reasonable grounds the person is located in, enter the vehicle and keep the vehicle at a particular place, for up to two hours, in order to serve a notice on the person and use reasonable force in doing so.

Subclause (3) provides that if the police officer suspects on reasonable grounds that a personal detail given by the person in response to a requirement under subclause (1)(b) is false, then the officer may require the person to produce evidence of the correctness of the detail.

Subclause (4) provides that if a person refuses or fails to comply with a requirement under clause 17, the police officer may convey the person to, and detain the person at a place for as long as is reasonably necessary, but for no longer than two hours, to serve a notice on the person.

Subclause (5) provides that the person is taken to be in lawful custody while they are being conveyed to a place and being detained at a place.

Subclause (6) provides that if a police officer suspects on reasonable grounds that a person upon whom a notice has been served is consorting with a convicted offender specified in a notice, the officer may require the restricted person to:

- (a) leave a place, or a part of the place, specified by the officer;
- (b) go beyond a reasonable distance from the place, or a part of the place, specified by the officer; or
- (c) obey a requirement of the officer under subclause (6)(a) or (b) for a reasonable period specified by the officer that does not exceed 24 hours.

Subclause (7) provides that subclause (6) does not apply if the police officer is satisfied that the circumstances referred to in clause 9 would give the restricted person a defence to a charge of a crime under clause 8(1) in relation to the consorting.

18. Failure to comply with directions of police officer

This clause contains three offences for failing to comply with the direction of a police officer exercising powers under clause 17.

Explanatory Memorandum
Criminal Law (Unlawful Consorting) Bill 2020

First, under subclause (1), a person who, without reasonable excuse, does not comply with the requirement of a police officer to:

- stop or accompany the officer to a police station or some other place, or remain at the police station or some other place to serve the notice; and
- leave a place, or part of a place, go beyond a reasonable distance from the place, or part of the place, or obey such a requirement for a period of up to 24 hours, commits an offence.

Second, under subclause (2), a person who is required by a police officer to disclose their personal details commits an offence if the person, without reasonable excuse, fails or refuses to comply with the requirement or gives any personal detail that is false in a material particular.

Third, under subclause (3), a person who is required by a police officer to produce evidence of the correctness of a personal detail commits an offence if the person, without reasonable excuse, fails or refuses to comply with the requirement or produces evidence that is false in a material particular.

Subclause (4) provides that it is not a defence to any of these offences, if information required to be given under the order would, or might, incriminate the person.

The maximum penalty for each offence is imprisonment for 12 months and a fine of $12,000.

Part 3 – Monitoring

24. Parliamentary Commissioner may notify Commissioner of Police of suspected non-compliance with section 10(2)

Subclause (1) enables the Parliamentary Commissioner, as a result of an inspection under Part 3, to recommend to the Commissioner of Police that a notice be revoked under section 16(4) if the Parliamentary Commissioner is of the opinion that the requirements for the issue of a notice were not met.

Under subclause (2), a recommendation from the Parliamentary Commissioner to the Commissioner of Police must be made in writing during the period that the notice is in force and must give the reasons for the Parliamentary Commissioner's opinion under subclause (1).

Subclauses (3) and (4) require the Commissioner of Police, as soon as practicable, to notify the Minister (being the Attorney General), in writing, of a recommendation and also to notify both the Minister and Parliamentary Commissioner, in writing, of any action taken by the Commissioner of Police in respect of a recommendation.

report on the Parliamentary Commissioner's monitoring activities under the Bill. The annual report must be provided to the Minister (being the Attorney General) and the Commissioner of Police.

Subclause (2) provides that the annual report may include any observations that the Parliamentary Commissioner considers appropriate about the operation of the Bill. It also requires that the annual report include any recommendations made by the Parliamentary Commissioner that a notice be revoked (under clause 24(1)), details of any action taken by the Commissioner of Police in response to these recommendations (under clause 24(3)(b)) and information provided to the Parliamentary Commissioner under clause 25(2).

Part 4 – Miscellaneous

28. Proof of service

Subclause (1) provides that, if service of any document is required under this Bill, proof of service must be given by certificate in writing.

In addition, subclause (2) requires that the certificate must state that, on the day and at the time and place stated in the certificate, the person giving the certificate served the document in accordance with the Bill.

Subclause (3) provides that the certificate must state the full particulars of the name and address of the person served.

Subclause (4) provides that a certificate under clause 28 is, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, sufficient proof of service of the document on the person stated to have been served.

29. Delegation by Commissioner of Police

Clause 29(1) empowers the Commissioner of Police, except where provided in subclauses (5) and (6), to delegate, powers or duties to revoke a notice (under clause 16) to a police officer (the delegated officer) who is, or is acting as, an officer of a rank more senior than a Commander.

Subclause (2) provides this delegation must be in writing and signed by the Commissioner of Police.

Under subclause (3), a delegated officer cannot delegate revocation functions.

Subclause (4) provides that when a delegated officer is performing revocation functions, the officer is taken to do so in accordance with the terms of the delegation unless the contrary is shown.

Under subclause (5), a prescribed officer who issues an unlawful consorting notice is not eligible to be the delegated officer in relation to that notice.

Despite clause 16(4), subclause (6) provides that the delegated officer: (a) cannot revoke an unlawful consorting notice on the delegated officer's own initiative; but (b) may instead revoke an unlawful consorting notice on the recommendation of the Parliamentary Commissioner.

30. Delegation by Parliamentary Commissioner

Subclause (1) defines inspecting officer as the Deputy Parliamentary Commissioner for Administrative Investigations appointed under section 6A(2) of the Parliamentary Commissioner Act 1971 or an officer of the Commissioner appointed under section 9(1) of the Parliamentary Commissioner Act 1971.

Subclauses (2) and (3) provide that, subject to subclause (4), the Parliamentary Commissioner may delegate powers or duties under Part 3 to a specified inspecting officer or inspecting officers of a specified class. Such delegation must be in writing, signed by the Parliamentary Commissioner.

Subclause (4) confirms that the Parliamentary Commissioner cannot delegate a power to report to the Minister.

Under subclause (5), an inspecting officer to whom a power or duty is delegated under this clause cannot delegate that power or duty.

Subclause (6) provides that an inspecting officer exercising or performing a power or duty that has been delegated to that inspecting officer under this clause is taken to do so in accordance with the terms of the delegation, unless the contrary is shown.

Subclause (7) provides that nothing in this clause limits the ability of the Parliamentary Commissioner to perform a function through an officer or agent.

31. Laying documents before House of Parliament not sitting

Subclause (1) provides that this clause will apply if a provision of the Bill requires the Minister to cause a document to be laid before a House of Parliament within a particular period.

Subclause (2) requires the Minister to give a copy of the document to the Clerk of that House if the House of Parliament is not sitting and the Minister is of the opinion that the House will not sit during that period.

Subclause (3) clarifies that a document given to the Clerk of a House in this way is taken to have been laid before the House.

Subclause (4) provides that the laying of a document before a House that is taken to have occurred under subclause (3) must be recorded in the Minutes, or Votes and Proceedings, of the House on the first sitting day of the House after the Clerk received the document.

32. Regulations

This clause provides that the Governor may make regulations prescribing matters required or permitted to be prescribed, or that are necessary or convenient to be prescribed for giving effect to the purposes of the Bill.

33. Act to be reviewed after 3 years

Subclause (1) requires the Minister (being the Attorney General) to review the operation and effectiveness of the Act, and prepare a report based on the review, as soon practicable after the third anniversary of the day on which clause 33 comes into operation.

Subclause (2) requires the review to address whether the policy objectives of the Act remain valid; whether the terms of the Act remain appropriate for securing the policy objects of the Act; whether the powers exercised under the Act have been exercised in accordance with the objects of the Act; and any other matters that appear to the Minister to be relevant to its operation and effectiveness.

Subclause (3) provides that the Minister is to cause the report to be laid before each House of Parliament as soon as practicable after it is prepared, but not later than 12 months after the third anniversary.

Part 5 – Amendments to other Acts

Division 1 – Community Protection (Offender Reporting) Act 2004 amended

34. Act amended

This clause provides that this Division amends the Community Protection (Offender Reporting) Act 2004.

35. Schedule 2 amended

This clause amends Schedule 2 of the Community Protection (Offender Reporting) Act 2004 by deleting reference to the offence at section 557K(4) of The Criminal Code and replacing it with reference to the offence of unlawful consorting contained in clause 8(1) of this Bill. This reflects the removal of the offence of consorting between convicted child sex offenders from The Criminal Code and insertion into the unlawful consorting scheme in this Bill.

Division 2 – The Criminal Code amended

36. Act amended

This clause provides that this Division amends The Criminal Code.

37. Section 557J deleted

This clause deletes section 557J of The Criminal Code. Section 557J of The Criminal Code contains an offence for consorting between declared drug traffickers. This cohort of offenders will now be subject to the new unlawful consorting scheme contained in this Bill. A declared drug trafficker means a person who is declared to be a drug trafficker under section 32A(1)(c) of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1981 (WA).

38. Section 557K amended

This clause will delete subsections 557K(4) and (5) of The Criminal Code and the definition of consort in section 557K(1). This Bill includes child sex offender consorting within its broader unlawful consorting regime. All offenders that could fall within the consorting provisions of section 557K of the Code could also fall within the unlawful consorting regime created by this Bill.

The remainder of section 557K of The Criminal Code will continue to prohibit child sex offenders from being near places where children are regularly present without reasonable excuse.

The heading to amended section 557K will read:

Child sex offenders not to be in or near places where children are regularly present

39. Schedule 1 clause 4 inserted

This clause will insert a new clause 4 into Schedule 1 of The Criminal Code to provide for a transitional period from the day clause 10 of the Bill comes into operation, and ending on the day when clause 38 of the Bill comes into operation. As provided for in clause 2 of the Bill, that transitional period amounts to twelve months.

During this transitional period, a police officer cannot give a warning under subsection 557K(4) of The Criminal Code. In addition, if an unlawful consorting notice is issued during the transitional period to a person to whom a warning has been given under subsection 557K(4) of The Criminal Code, then the warning ceases to have effect for the purposes of subsection 557K(4).

The intent of clause 39 is that both regimes will operate concurrently for 12 months following commencement of the operative provisions of the Bill. During this period, warnings issued under subsection 557K(4) of The Criminal Code will continue to have effect until they are replaced by a new notice issued under the Bill. If warnings issued under subsection 557K(4) of The Criminal Code are not replaced during the transitional period, those warnings will cease to have effect when clause 38 of the Bill comes into operation.

This transitional provision is to enable sufficient time for the Western Australian Police Force to bring convicted child sex offenders subject to the consorting regime under section 557K of The Criminal Code into the more rigorous consorting regime provided for in the Bill.

Schedule 1 – Child sex offences

This Schedule contains a list of offences that fall within the definition of child sex offence defined in clause 4 of the Bill. The list of offences is consistent with offences included in the definition of child sex offender in section 557K of The Criminal Code.
