

Unclaimed Money (Superannuation and RSA Providers) Amendment and Expiry Bill 2012

Explanatory Memorandum

The changes in the Unclaimed Money (Superannuation and RSA Providers) Amendment and Expiry Bill 2012 (the Bill) provide for the transfer of the stock, and ongoing responsibility, of lost and unclaimed superannuation money held by Western Australian public authorities and public sector superannuation schemes to the Australian Taxation Office (ATO). This follows agreement between the Commonwealth and the States and Territories to centralise unclaimed superannuation within the ATO in order to facilitate superannuation fund members being reunited with their lost and unclaimed superannuation.

Unclaimed superannuation is generally a Commonwealth responsibility, through the operation of its Superannuation (Unclaimed Money and Lost Members) Act 1999 (SUMLMA). The term 'unclaimed superannuation money' under the SUMLMA refers to three types of unclaimed money:

- 'general' unclaimed superannuation money, being superannuation money held by a superannuation provider which belongs to a member who has turned 65 years of age, has made no contributions for two years and has not been contactable by the fund for five years;
- unclaimed superannuation of former temporary residents; and
- lost member accounts, - that is, - small accounts of lost members and inactive accounts of unidentifiable members.

Implementation of the transfer proposal will bring public sector unclaimed superannuation arrangements into line with those arrangements applying to superannuation schemes regulated under the Commonwealth's Superannuation Industry (Supervision) Act 2003 (SIS Act). The SIS Act regulated schemes have been required to transfer unclaimed superannuation that meets the SUMLMA definition to the ATO since 1 July 2007.

The unclaimed superannuation money held in Western Australia that will be subject to transfer to the ATO arises from two sources:

1. unclaimed superannuation money paid to the Department of Treasury (Treasury) up until 30 June 2007 under the Unclaimed Money (Superannuation and RSA Providers) Act 2003 (UMA), that has not been paid to a claimant at the transfer implementation date; and
2. unclaimed superannuation money paid under the State Superannuation Act 2000 (SSA) that is held in the Government Employees Superannuation (GES) Fund administered by the Government Employees Superannuation Board (GESB), in relation to members of the GESB accumulation schemes, prescribed under regulations to the SUMLMA for inclusion in the transfer regime.

Further details on the above unclaimed superannuation sources under the respective statutes are provided in the next sections.

Unclaimed Money (Superannuation and RSA Providers) Act 2003 (UMA)

Up until 30 July 2007, private superannuation providers registered in Western Australia were required under the UMA to pay unclaimed superannuation, meeting the SUMLMA definition of 'unclaimed superannuation' to the State Treasurer.

Following amendments to the SUMLMA by the Commonwealth effective from 1 July 2007, unclaimed superannuation previously paid to a State or Territory Treasurer by private sector funds under State or Territory legislation was instead required to be paid to the ATO from this date.

Unclaimed superannuation collected under the UMA to 30 June 2007 which has not been paid to a claimant at the transfer implementation date will be subject to transfer to the ATO. These monies are held in the Consolidated Account and are administered by Treasury.

State Superannuation Act 2000 (SSA)

The second source of State-held unclaimed superannuation relates to unclaimed superannuation paid to public sector employees under the SSA that is held in the GES Fund administered by GESB.

Under the transfer arrangements, transferral to the ATO of unclaimed superannuation monies held in the GES Fund will only apply in relation to unclaimed superannuation belonging to members of those GESB-administered superannuation schemes prescribed by regulation under the SUMLMA for inclusion in the transfer regime. The GESB schemes prescribed under the SUMLMA for this purpose are the West State Super, GESB Super and GESB Super (Retirement Access) schemes.

The transfer of unclaimed superannuation from the GES Fund to the ATO involves:

- an initial transfer of the stock of accumulated unclaimed superannuation in the GES Fund meeting the SUMLMA definition at the transfer implementation date, in relation to members of the prescribed GESB schemes above; and
- subsequent ongoing transfers of unclaimed superannuation monies in the above schemes meeting the SUMLMA definition, in accordance with ATO reporting and payment requirements.
