

As a support worker I see alot of disadvantaged people in my work some of which have chronic pain among other things.

With the laws being what they are at the moment people can not easily go through legal endeavours to obtain cbd oil that would most likely bring back a quality of life that isn't so tiring and painful.

People should have the freedom to choose what use As medicines without the fear of legal action or the fear of going broke trying to get well.

There is enough evidence out now to see there's more harm in alcohol use than cannabis.
