

I believe that those deciding routes must be local to the area. At the moment for our regional town, it is decided in Perth. When I told the woman that my kids are expected to walk close to 2kto get on the bus, she said that was fine. Someone in the city said it was fine, when I know they have a bus stop every few hundred meters or so. There was no way she would understand what it means. Regional town, country staff.