Subject: For shooting animals in WA

Dear Ms Mesiti,

Dear Ms Mesti,

Our state forest are over ran by feral introduced species with endangered out native protected species. Current or method to control them is by poisoning and that is a slow agonising death which also targets out native and supposed protected species like baby joeys that stray to far from the mum and don't know better and we have a situation where it's mother watches her young die slowly over few days and this applies to all species , protected or not.

I understand what you trying to do, it's not about protecting animals it's anti hunting.

If your not going to go out there and remove these pest please don't stop people who are willing too.

Mark

Sincerely,

Mark D
