Dear Committee,

I would like to put forward my opinion that I feel the RSPCA has over recent years completely stepped away from its original charter of protecting against cruelty to animals. In recent times they now seem to have been taken over by far left wing animal liberation advocates and I for one as a tax payer no longer feel inclined to support them at all.

Basically I think they should either get back to what they were originally set up to do or fund themselves. I no longer donate to them after a life time of support.

It seems they are now controlled by a group of Vegan Animal liberationists that are opposed to anything sensible.

I trust that this is taken into account as there are a growing number of sensible people in our community that are now offended by their antics.

Best regards,

Trevor Ruwoldt
