Subject: End of Life Choices

I write in support of Voluntary Euthanasia.

If the decision is made while in a right state of mind one should be allowed a dignified death, preferably in the company of one's family.

As the medical profession is by oath pledged to prolong life, no matter what the consequences, it may be better to exclude them from legal responsibility.

I write as a healthy married man of no religious persuasion aged 87 who has benefitted from medical skills that have enabled me to survive cancer on three occasions.

The above is my personal opinion and is in no way reflective of anyone else's views.

Regards,

Brian J. Aldrich
