Dear Sir/Madam,

I support the concept of END-OF-LIFE CHOICES.

Like millions of others I have witnessed the horrendous, traumatic and degrading suffering and long-drawn-out deaths of family members and friends.

I was brought up in the Christian faith, but my experiences have led me to now believe that there is no God; so I would prefer to legally choose my own time and manner of death, rather than leave the choice to a God I no longer believe in.

I think it is inhumane to allow such suffering to continue. If you wouldn't do it to your dog, why would you do it to your parents, or anyone else?

I am 75 years old now and fervently hope that the laws will be changed in the very near future.

Yours sincerely,

Brenda Walker
