Subject: Hunting on private land

As an avid hunter and environmentalist I strongly support hunting on public lands in Western Australia. Not only will it help control invasive and highly destructive pests in the largest state of Australia, but it will bring money, in the form of tourism and investments in local firearm vendors to the state. Having the largest landmass of any state it only makes sense to adopt similar policies like our eastern neighbours. Hunting, in my view is the simplest most cost effective way to curb environmental damage by feral pests.

Thank you for your time.
