

STATUTE LAW REVISION BILL, 1965.

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM.

The Statute Law Revision Act, 1964 was the beginning of a plan to put the Statutes of Western Australia into a form suitable for reprinting.

That Act repealed 384 enactments which were no longer effective and the present Bill is intended to continue the plan by repealing a further 719 enactments most of which were passed after 1900 and all of which are, for the reasons referred to hereunder, thought to be spent, unnecessary or superseded.

The enactments intended to be repealed are set out in the five Schedules to the Bill.

These Schedules are as follows:—

The First Schedule comprises five Parts:

Part I—Supply and appropriation Acts for the period 1901 to 1963.

Part II—Loan Acts under which loans were raised for and appropriated to various public services.

Part III—Miscellaneous Money Acts.

The proposal to repeal the Acts listed in the three preceding Parts is approved by the Treasury.

Part IV—Roads and Streets: This Part contains a number of enactments passed during the period 1832-1963. Their proposed repeal has been examined and approved of by the Department of Lands and Surveys.

Part V—General: This Part contains a number of enactments which are no longer effective. It will be seen that a significant portion of them consists of Acts dealing with emergency conditions which arose during and after the two major wars which have occurred in this century.

The Second Schedule contains a number of Acts relating to railways:

Parts I and II comprise Construction Acts. The reason for their division into separate Parts is explained later in these notes.

Part III consists of a number of Acts authorising the discontinuance of railways; and Part IV contains a number of miscellaneous railway Acts.

All the Acts listed in this Schedule have been examined by the Railways Department and the Commissioner has approved of the proposed repeals.

The Third Schedule contains two enactments each of which it was intended to repeal but which were incorrectly described in the repealing enactments. A Court would probably treat them as repealed, but they are included in this Act to put the matter beyond doubt.

The Fourth Schedule contains four Acts relating to tramways. To ascertain that they are no longer effective it is necessary to have access to a Government Gazette of 1913. The purpose of including them in this Bill is to provide a record in the Statutes of the date when they became ineffective.

The Fifth Schedule contains one Act which was passed by the Legislature and reserved for Royal Assent but that assent was never given.

The effect of the repeals contemplated by this Bill is referred to in the Interpretation Act, 1918-1962. In particular, in the present context, it will be noted (S. 12) that the repeal of a repealing enactment does not revive the enactment previously repealed and (S. 16) that a repeal does not affect the operation of the repealed enactment or any right acquired prior to the repeal.

In only one case has any doubt arisen whether the saving provisions of the Interpretation Act are wide enough to ensure that a proposed repeal will not change the law.

Each of the enactments listed in Part I of the Second Schedule authorised the construction of a railway and in most cases authorised deviations to a greater extent than the limit authorised by the Public Works Act, 1902-1961. Subclause (2) of clause 3 of the Bill has been added to ensure that notwithstanding the repeal of the authorising enactment, these authorised limits of deviation are preserved.

The enactments listed in Part II of the Second Schedule also authorised the construction of railways but it is unnecessary to preserve any limit of deviation authorised by them and that is the only reason why they are collected in a separate part.

In the detailed comments which follow it will be noted that the calendar year in which each enactment was assented to is set out and that where the regnal number and the calendar number of the enactment differ both have been shown. So, for instance, the Sale of Liquor Regulation Act, 1915, listed in Part V of the First Schedule was not assented to until 10th January, 1916. Its regnal number is 6 George V No. 30 and its calendar number 63 of 1915.

The confusion which may otherwise occur is illustrated by the Mines Regulation Act Amendment Act, 1915 which is included in the Third Schedule. Its regnal number is 6 George V No. 20 and its calendar number 53 of 1915. In the Act purporting to repeal it, it was described as 5 George V No. 53.

It will also be seen that long titles have not been reproduced but short titles have been.

The Bill is not intended to make any alteration in the substance of the law.

PART V—GENERAL.

1850—14 Vict. No. 15.

This was an Ordinance to provide for the improvement of towns. It repealed certain earlier enactments, vested the property of towns and the management thereof in Town Trustees and conferred on them the necessary powers and duties. The Ordinance, 14 Vict. No. 26 of 1851, prescribed conditions for building in towns and was repealed by 15 Vict. No. 9 of 1852, which also substituted other provisions. This latter Ordinance was amended by 19 Vict. No. 2 of 1855, which reduced the penalties for breaches of certain provisions of 15 Vict. No. 9. The City of Perth Improvement Ordinance, 1858 (22 Vict. No. 10), provided that 14 Vict. No. 15 of 1850 should be "considered as repealed in so far as relates to that City", vested all property of the city in the Perth City Council and provided for the management thereof. This Ordinance was amended by the City Council Amendment Ordinance, 1864 (28 Vict. No. 10).

The Ordinance, 32 Vict. No. 5 of 1868, further amended 14 Vict. No. 15 of 1850, but only in so far as concerned the Town of Fremantle.

The Municipal Institutions Act, 1871 (34 Vict. No. 6), repealed all the abovementioned Ordinances but provided "that such repeal shall take place only so far as the same affects or in any way applies to the said City of Perth, or any Town the inhabitants of which shall, under the provisions of this Act, be incorporated".

The repeals thus effected were:—

- (1) The Ordinances, 22 Vict. No. 10 of 1858 and 28 Vict. No. 10 of 1864, both being limited in their operation to the City of Perth were completely repealed.
- (2) There was a complete de facto repeal of the Ordinance, 32 Vict. No. 5 of 1868 (which was limited to the Town of Fremantle) upon that town's subsequent incorporation under the 1871 Act (see 3 below).
- (3) The Ordinances, 14 Vict. No. 15 of 1850, 15 Vict. No. 9 of 1852, and 19 Vict. No. 2 of 1855, were repealed, but only in so far as they affected the City of Perth and the Towns of Fremantle, Guildford, Albany, Bunbury, Busselton, Geraldton and York, all of which were subsequently incorporated under the 1871 Act (see Government Gazette, 21st February, 1871, p. 41). As already mentioned, 14 Vict. No. 15 of 1850, in so far as it affected the City of Perth was also previously repealed by The City of Perth Improvement Ordinance, 1858 (22 Vict. No. 10).

If the towns referred to above included all those previously embraced by 14 Vict. No. 15 of 1850 as amended by 15 Vict. No. 9 of 1852 and 19 Vict. No. 2 of 1855 there was, on their incorporations in 1871 a complete de facto repeal of such Ordinances as in the case of 32 Vict. No. 5 of 1868, referred to in 2 above. In any event all three ordinances, have been superseded by later local government legislation and, together with 32 Vict. No. 5 of 1868, may safely be repealed. The Secretary for Local Government agrees with this recommendation.

Year. Act or Ordinance.

1852—15 Vict. No. 9.

This Ordinance repealed 14 Vict. No. 26 of 1851, which had prescribed conditions for building in towns and substituted fresh provisions. It was amended by 19 Vict. No. 2 of 1855, infra (see note to 14 Vict. No. 15 of 1850 supra).

1855—19 Vict. No. 2.

This Ordinance amended 15 Vict. No. 9 of 1852 (supra) by reducing the penalties for breaches of certain provisions thereof (see note to 14 Vict. No. 15 of 1850 supra).

1866—30 Vict. No. 9.

This Ordinance was the original enactment which provided for the incorporation in Western Australia of "The National Bank of Australasia", following on the original establishment in Victoria in 1858. An amending Ordinance, 31 Vict. No. 9 of 1867 (infra) repealed certain provisions of this Ordinance and substituted others in place of those repealed. In the general reconstruction of the bank which took place in 1893 all assets and liabilities of the bank as established and existing in this State under these two Ordinances were purchased and taken over by The National Bank of Australasia Limited as incorporated in Victoria on 23rd June, 1893, and therefore the bank as originally constituted ceased to exist. The National Bank of Australasia Limited agrees that both Ordinance may safely be repealed.

1867—31 Vict. No. 9.

This Ordinance repealed certain provisions contained in the Ordinance 30 Vict. No. 9 of 1866 providing for the original establishment in Western Australia of The National Bank of Australasia and substituted other provisions in place of those repealed. The National Bank of Australasia Limited agrees that both Ordinances may safely be repealed (see note to 30 Vict. No. 9 of 1866 (supra)).

1868—32 Vict. No. 5.

This Ordinance amended 14 Vict. No. 15 of 1850, in so far as it concerned the Town of Fremantle (see note to 14 Vict. No. 15 of 1850 supra).

1874—38 Vict. No. 14.

This was an Act to extend the powers of the Perth City Council by empowering the Council to construct a drain or conduit from Lake Kingsford to Claisebrook and conferring the necessary further powers for this purpose of entry upon lands, removal and use of soil, inspection and alteration. The Act also provided for the payment of compensation, the purchase of land and arbitration. The Metropolitan Water Supply Sewerage and Drainage Board is satisfied that all drains in the area in which the drain authorised by this Act was or is situated are now vested in the Board, and the Council of the City of Perth agrees that the Act may safely be repealed.

This Act granted to certain persons the rights and powers necessary for the manufacture, distribution and supply of gas and electricity within the Road Board Districts of Cottesloe, Buckland Hill and Peppermint Grove. By section 39 the local authorities had the option of purchasing the undertaking at any time after 1st January, 1921, and in the exercise of this option the same was acquired by the Municipality of Cottesloe and in turn sold to the Commissioner of Railways in September, 1924, the agreement being ratified by the Cottesloe Electric Light and Power Act, No. 37 of 1925. The State Electricity Commission subsequently took over the area covered by this Act from the Commissioner of Railways under the State Electricity Commission Act, No. 60 of 1945 and the Secretary to the Commission agrees that this Act may safely be repealed.

1899—63 Vict.: The Peppermint Grove, Cottesloe, and Buckland Hill Water Supply (Private) Act, 1899.

This Act authorised William Dalgety Moore, the owner of certain lands at Claremont on which were erected "The Osborne Waterworks", or his assigns, to undertake the supplying of water throughout the Road Board Districts of Peppermint Grove, Cottesloe and Buckland Hill and conferred on Moore the rights, powers and privileges necessary for this purpose. It was also provided that the Act was not to confer on Moore any exclusive right to supply water within the area nor to affect the right of any local authority, body corporate or other person to obtain a supply of water elsewhere (section 29), and the Government was specifically empowered to construct water works without compensating the proprietor, i.e., Moore, his heirs and assigns (section 30). The responsibility for supplying water to these premises served by the undertaking authorised by this Act was assumed by the Government in October, 1903, when the Osborne Water Supply was shut off and that system connected to the Government System at Claremont (see Hansard, Volume 23 (New Series), p. 1568) from which time this Act ceased to have any effect. The Metropolitan Water Supply Sewerage and Drainage Board agrees that the Act may safely be repealed.

SECOND SCHEDULE.

RAILWAY ACTS.

PARTS I AND II—CONSTRUCTION ACTS.

These Acts authorised the construction of various railways which are identified by the short titles.

The provisions of the Interpretation Act ensure that the authority to construct a railway the construction of which has been completed is not affected by the repeal of the Act authorising the construction. Adequate power to maintain a railway constructed pursuant to one of these Acts is conferred by the Public Works Act, 1902-1961.

In the case of those Acts comprising Part I it is necessary to preserve the limits of deviations as originally authorised and this has been effected by subclause (2) of clause 3 of the Bill.

The railways authorised by the Acts comprising Part II have all since been discontinued, and it is therefore not necessary to preserve the limits of deviations as with those Acts in Part I and they are accordingly included in a separate part.

PART III—DISCONTINUANCE ACTS.

These Acts authorised the discontinuance of various railways which are identified by the short titles with the exception of the Railways Discontinuance Act, 1928 as to which a brief note appears.

PART IV—MISCELLANEOUS RAILWAY ACTS.

The three Acts comprising this part deal with various matters associated with railways.

The Commissioner of Railways agrees that all the Acts comprising this Schedule may safely be repealed.
