SUMMARY

The result of the Armadale by-election was declared by the Returning Officer Mr Roger Simm on Monday 11 October 2010. Mr Tony Buti one of four candidates contesting the by-election was elected, gaining 54.80% of the first preference votes. The two-party preferred majority was 20.29%. Armadale has been a Labor Party seat for the last 27 years.

Early voting (in person) was available for electors at 45 locations throughout Western Australia, interstate and overseas. In an evident trend, early voting increased by over 31.6% compared to the last State general election. On polling day 11 polling places, 10 of which were used in the 2008 State general election were again provided in the district in order to remove potential confusion for electors.

In an effort to maximise voter turnout on polling day, a personally addressed Easy Voter Card was posted to every elector within the district. Included on the card was a map of the district, information on how to cast an early vote, a list of polling places, instructions on how to fill out the ballot paper, and a message that voting in the by-election was compulsory. A sample copy is provided on page 20.

Voter turnout was reasonable considering the by-election was held during school holidays. In addition, polling day coincided with the AFL Grand Final rematch, and a Federal election had been held only six weeks earlier. A total of 75.2% of eligible electors cast their vote.

The total cost of the by-election was $167,935 excluding GST and Commission overheads (including the salaries of permanent staff). Public funding of candidates and parties cost $28,396.

Easy Voter Card

In an effort to maximise elector turnout a personally addressed Easy Voter Card was produced and mailed to every elector within the district in the week commencing 20 September 2010. The messages in the Easy Voter Card reminded electors that voting was compulsory and provided the date and time of polling; the list of all polling places within the district; details of how to cast an early vote and how to fill in ballot papers; and a map of the district. A sample copy is attached at the end of this report on page 20.

Election Information Services – Election Line and Website

From 9 August 2010 – 8 October 2010, the Western Australian Electoral Commission provided an information line telephone enquiry service to the general public via a direct line and a 1300 number which had previously been established for elector enquiries. The election information line was staffed from 8.00 am to 5.00 pm every weekday and from 8.00 am until 6.00 pm on polling day.

A total of 1,060 calls were made to this service over the election period. The majority of enquiries related to enrolment status, early voting in person, early voting by post, polling place locations and whether voting was compulsory. Three percent of the calls were from people wanting to know the reason for the by-election.

Enquiries were also received from some people who were unsure if they were in the Armadale district due to some candidate promotional material being sent to areas outside the district by a political party.

The Commission website also contained contact details of the Returning Officer, information regarding the timetable of the by-election, early voting (by post) application forms, details of early voting (in person) locations, polling places, a colour map of polling places within the district and an electorate profile. At the conclusion of polling the website was continuously updated with election results.

Electors with Disabilities

All polling places and early voting (in person) issuing offices were equipped with magnifying sheets, large 2B pencils with a triangular grip and hearing impairment information desk cards. On polling day, 8 of the 11 polling places in the district provided wheelchair access and parking. Polling place managers were trained and prepared to issue a vote to electors unable to come into a polling place.

Early Voting (by post)

Early voting (by post) was available to electors who were unable to visit a polling place on polling day.

Application forms were available for download from the Commission's website, Australia Post outlets in the district and upon request from Election Line staff.

Applications for early voting (by post) commenced on Monday 9 August 2010 and closed on Thursday 30 September 2010. Final postal votes received prior to 9.00 am on Thursday 7 October 2010, bearing a postmark prior to 6.00 pm on 2 October 2010 were accepted, in accordance with the Act.

Processing of all applications was performed centrally at Commission offices. Of the 1,636 postal votes issued, 1,374 were returned. Of those returned 1,299 were deemed to be valid votes.

Early Voting (in person)

Early voting (in person) was available to Armadale electors from Monday 6 September 2010 at the following offices during normal business hours and concluded at 6.00 pm on Friday 1 October 2010.

A total of 1,374 early votes (in person) were made of which 36 were informal. This resulted in 1,338 formal votes being included in the count.

Staff at the Armadale Court house issued most of the early votes (in person) and marked the names of each elector off a central copy of the electoral roll provided via wireless telecommunications to a netbook computer. This was a new initiative that worked particularly well.

The mobile teams marked the names of each elector off a central copy of the electoral roll provided via wireless telecommunications to a netbook computer.

Electoral Rolls

An innovation trialled at this by-election saw the use of netbook computers using secure wireless broadband to connect to a central roll to record the names of electors issued a vote. Electors who presented themselves to vote at any of the polling places had their name marked off the roll via the use of these computers. The software enabling this trial was developed by Commission staff and the netbooks used were kindly loaned by the Tasmanian Electoral Commission.

Although paper rolls were produced as a backup they were not required to be scanned after the event as the trial was successful and the paper rolls were not used. It is proposed to utilise this software, using similar equipment, at numerous polling places at the next State general election.

Posters and Signage

They must contain the name and address of the person authorising it and the address of business of the printer.

Signs at schools advertising a building project funded by the Federal Government's stimulus plan were covered up by staff from Building Management and Works (a section of the Department of Treasury and Finance) as it may have been considered to be unauthorised advertising under the above mentioned sections of the Act.

Additionally no electoral advertising is permitted within six metres from the entrance to a polling place on polling day. No polling place manager reported a breach of these requirements on polling day.

Provision of Election Results

Election results were progressively available to the voting public, candidates and political parties, and the media via the Commission's website at www.waec.wa.gov.au and from www.electionswa.com through a virtual tally room.

COUNTING OF THE VOTES AND DECLARATION OF THE POLL

Counting of votes commenced at 6.00 pm on polling night. Results were periodically received from polling places until approximately 9.00 pm when the final results for the night were lodged. Notional results were transmitted progressively and relayed onto the Commission's website as they became available.

On Thursday 7 October 2010 final early votes and provisional votes were verified and counted. On Friday 8 October 2010 a full distribution of preferences was conducted at the Western Australian Electoral Commission by the Returning Officer. This count confirmed the notional distribution of preferences conducted on election night.

The Returning Officer formally declared the poll on Monday 11 October 2010 at the Western Australian Electoral Commission Offices in Perth. Mr Tony Buti representing the Australian Labor Party (WA) was declared the new member for the Legislative Assembly District of Armadale with a majority of 7,019 votes.

Information relating to the by-election included the results at polling place level, were published on the Commission's website.

Complaints Handling

Two formal complaints were received relating to the Armadale by-election.

One of the complaints received related to access to the Polling Place at Nerrigen Brook Primary School through gates from the car park. The Polling Place Manager informed the Manager State Elections that the School had requested that the gates remain closed, which resulted in access being restricted from the car park. The Manager State Elections conveyed this information to the elector who lodged the complaint, and further stated that he would investigate the reason the School had submitted their request.

The second complaint concerned an apparent nine vote discrepancy during the election result. The Manager State Elections responded by informing the elector who lodged the complaint that the difference of nine votes observed in the published results for the By-election were exhausted votes. This response was accompanied by an explanation of what constitutes an exhausted vote.

A small percentage of electors telephoned with queries and concerns after promotional material from a candidate was distributed to electors located outside the Armadale district by a political party.

Non-Voters

A total of 5,849 electors were identified as apparent non voters. At the time of writing this document, 1,714 electors had been excused as a result of providing a valid reason as to why they were unable to vote. This included the elector being absent from the state, personal illness or having moved out of the district.

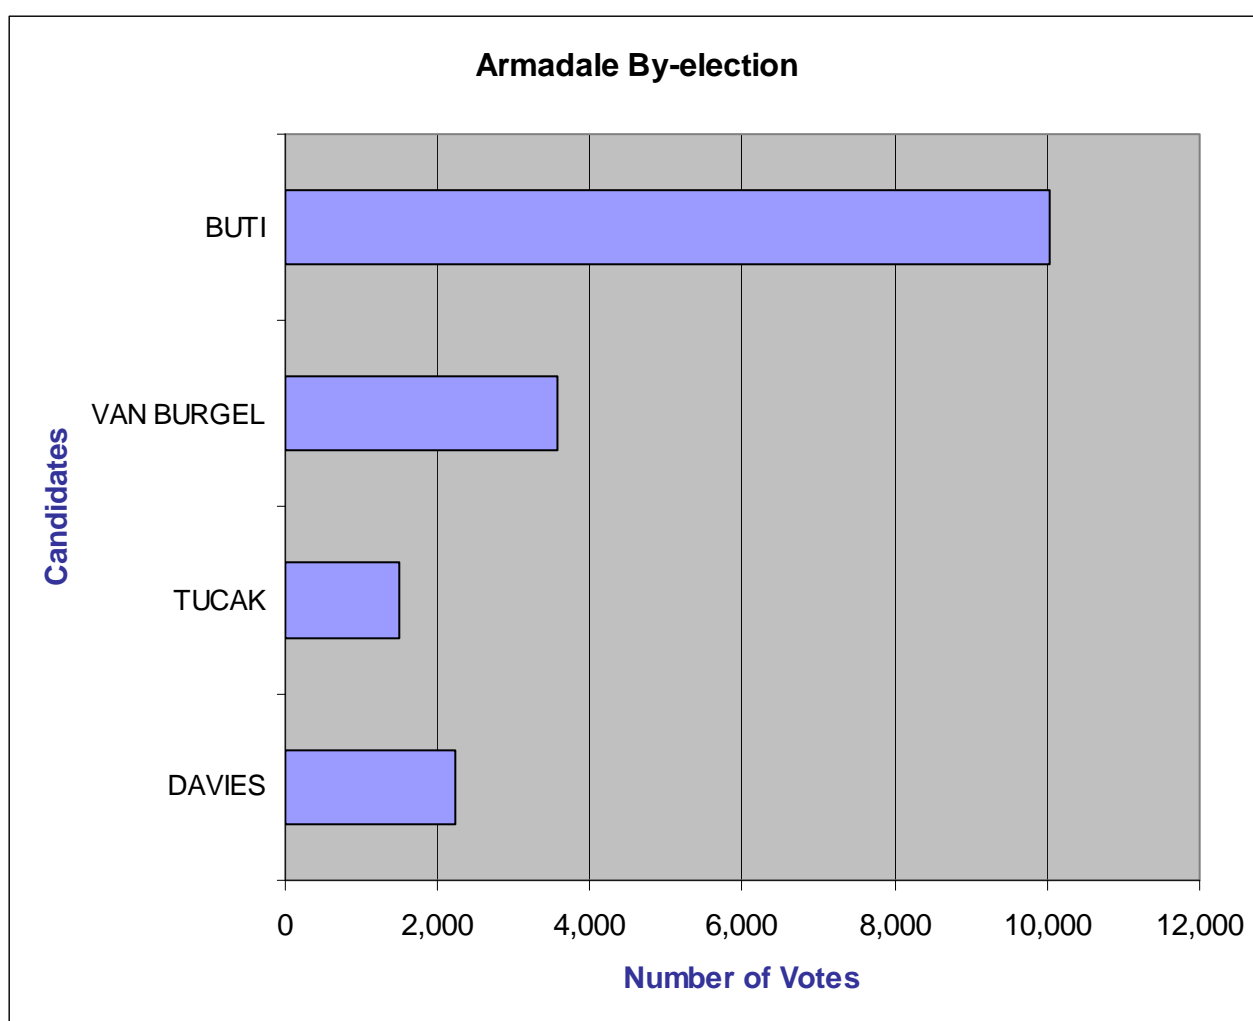

Costs

The total cost of the by-election was $167,935 excluding GST and Commission overheads (including permanent staff salaries). This cost comprises $76,230 for remunerations, $48,250 for advertising, $15,655 for services and contracts, and $27,800 for materials and administrative costs.
