1. Tuesday 10 January 2012 - Adelaide

Attend briefing from BHP Billiton Olympic Dam Expansion Project 2011. This session was hosted by executives from BHP Billiton in South Australia, who provided a comprehensive report on the development of Olympic Dam Mine, 560kms north of Adelaide.

Details of major infrastructure requirements for the project were outlined and reflect closely with infrastructure needs like desalination plants and electricity transmission lines, rail infrastructure and port upgrades that link with South West mining needs.

2. Saturday 14 January 2012 – Adelaide

Attend Morphettville Racecourse in Adelaide. This racecourse is only 5 kilometres from the City centre and the premier metropolitan racetrack in South Australia. I met with Facilities Manager, Ian Ricardo, who gave me a detailed briefing and inspection of the summer/winter track.

This visit provided insights into a near-city facility that Ascot/Belmont Racecourses could offer for all year round thoroughbred racing at one venue.

3. Tuesday 17 January 2012 – Darwin

Mr Gunner was able to provide a detailed outline of the Inpex project off Darwin, a gas exploration and production project that will place major infrastructure requirements on Darwin, including transport, accommodation and utilities supply.

4. Wednesday 18 January 2012 – Darwin

Met with John McRoberts, NT Police Commissioner and former WA Assistant Police Commissioner, to discuss the NT Government’s Banned Drinking Register and the Enough is Enough Alcohol Reform Report.

The NT Government has been able to significantly reduce unlawful offences from problems drinkers by introducing an identification system for alcohol purchases. Such initiatives are planned for the West Kimberley of WA.

The Enough is Enough Alcohol Reform program involves problem drinkers and alcohol related violence or crime. Several initiatives from the 6 month trial have proven highly successful and would serve well in many parts of Western Australia.

REF: REPORT ON VISIT TO SA, VIC AND NSW

Dear Peter

I travelled to South Australia, Victoria and New South Wales to speak to RSL clubs in regional town and cities to publicise the Albany Centenary of Anzac Alliance program which will run from 1st November 2014 until 11 November 2018.

The contacts I made will be passed on to the Alliance organisers and they will provide updates to these RSL Clubs.

A great many of the Anzacs who left Albany were from these regional areas of SA, VIC and NSW and everyone I met was pleased to pass on through their networks the information about our Centenary celebrations and the need to make travel plans early to ensure they didn't miss out.

Derek Robson, the National Secretary of the RSL, indicated that he was keen to come to WA with the RSL National Executive to see first-hand what progress we have made.

I also had the opportunity to attend a briefing by Steve Green from BHP Billiton regarding the Olympic Dam extension and the issues surrounding it, which was beneficial as Grange Resources are in the latter stages of setting up a mine in my electorate.

Yours sincerely

On Wednesday 21 March 2012, I travelled to Melbourne to meet with Australian Conservation Foundation to discuss Resource development in Western Australia in particular potential uranium mining (itinerary and Qantas booking attached).

Resource development and particularly the potential of uranium mining in my constituency is of great interest to them. Understanding the conservation sectors' attitudes to resource development in Western Australia is an important matter for any member of the Mining & Pastoral Region.

If you require further information please do not hesitate to contact me.

Purpose
The purpose of this trip was to conduct research for the Prostitution Bill which is due to be debated in our Parliament in 2012. Prostitution affects the lives of some of the most marginalised and vulnerable women in our State and as a female MP, I want to make sure that I have fully considered the impacts and consequences of this new legislation.

I consulted policy makers and stakeholders in Stockholm on the Swedish Model which was introduced 10 years ago and which has now been adopted in neighbouring European jurisdictions due to its success in combating prostitution. Norway has recently adopted the Swedish model and I discussed its impact with policy makers.

I also visited Copenhagen for a comparative study, as Denmark has a legalised prostitution industry.

Benefits
I visited Scandinavia to research different Government responses to the vexed policy issue of prostitution, so as to contribute positively to the debate in WA on the Prostitution Bill. What I learned from meeting different stakeholders in Stockholm, Oslo and Copenhagen is that there is no definitive answer to this that will provide a win-win for everyone involved. It is a very complex policy area as it encompasses multi-layered problems including poverty, violence and sexual abuse.
The Swedish Model is appealing in that it is premised on the notion of gender equality, but it does have shortcomings as I heard about in Oslo. The Swedish Model provides building blocks for sound policy, by removing the criminal focus from women in prostitution and focusing instead on the demand for prostitutes, that is the buyer. The evidence shows that this has led to positive changes in attitudes towards women over time. There are some good outcomes in terms of reductions in street prostitutes and trafficking. To really have an impact on reducing the sex trade, the Swedish Model must be coupled with large scale exit funding, to genuinely assist the most vulnerable women in prostitution to leave.

This is ultimately a women’s issue. Until politicians acknowledge that prostitution on the whole harms women, the problems will continue to be swept under the carpet. It was female MPs in Scandinavia that took this on as a women’s issue, by naming the harm caused by prostitution to women and premising the legislative response on values of gender equality. We can’t solve global trafficking with our bill, but we can send a message that we will not tolerate trafficked women in our State. My goals for this WA Bill – gender equality, genuine choices for all women, generous support funding to assist those wanting to exit and start a new life.

I introduced aspects of the Swedish Model and exit funding as a package of amendments that I negotiated with the Attorney General in relation to the Prostitution Bill in WA – see media summary for details of my amendments to the WA Bill.

Details of meetings

2 January
Depart Perth 10pm

4 January
Arrive Stockholm 4am

4 January
Toured red light district, Stockholm

5 January
Meeting with Patrik Cederlof, 10.30-12.30
National Coordinator Against Prostitution, County Board of Stockholm
Notes from meeting:

Sweden is a progressive society, with free health care and education including university, without many of the social problems of other societies. Sweden has socially progressive laws eg it’s against the law to hit children, spouses and to buy sex – these laws are based on principles of gender equality and non violence. I was interested to find out about their radical stand on prostitution, which 10 years on, despite the initial critics, appears to be highly successful in combating prostitution and helping women exit the sex trade.

Mr Cederlof was passionate about the success of the Swedish Model in combating prostitution. He is firmly of the view that prostitution harms women and he told me that over the years he has met many women in prostitution. He says that typically, at the first meeting, they tend to justify their ‘work’, and then at the second meeting they admit they hate it and want out. Many are uneducated, have a history of sexual abuse and are addicted to drugs and alcohol.

Mr Cederlof provided an interesting comparison – in Stockholm there are approximately 200 street prostitutes with a population of 2 million. In Barcelona, same population, there are 20,000 street prostitutes. The reason for the higher numbers in Barcelona is directly related to the different policy approaches of the Governments. Mr Cederlof noted "in Sweden, we are clear that we don’t want it on our streets and our police aggressively pursue the sex buyers. We are clearer today than we were 10 years ago. We know this works now."

Mr Cederlof detailed exit funding in Sweden, noting that there are 3 different shelters in Stockholm. He described a multidisciplinary approach, coordinated across all spheres of Government including the Police and Justice officials to deal with this -- 18 officials meet 4 times every year in Stockholm and run training programs about combating prostitution and trafficking. A lot of Government resources have been directed at this in Sweden.

January 6, 7, 8 Private nights, no claim
January 9 Meeting with Jan Austad, Ministry of Justice Oslo, Norway

Notes from meeting:

Mr Austad was previously a prosecutor with Interpol in France, before taking on his Ministerial role in Oslo. He has been in this role for 5 years, coordinating at a Ministerial level, 3 ministries involved in prostitution, ie Ministry for Equality and Inclusion, Children, Foreign Affairs.
10 years ago, many foreign women, mainly from Eastern Europe and Nigeria, illegally entered Norway and worked as street prostitutes. This was supply driven prostitution and it was increasing. Norwegian men coming out of bars at night, were literally falling into the arms of Nigerian women on the streets and could buy sex on the spot. This was confronting for Norwegians, who saw themselves as people of strong moral fibre with strong humanitarian values. It challenged them to see their society exploiting foreign women like this.

In 2003-4, they looked to Sweden and Holland for solutions. All political parties were divided on this.

In 2005, a left-wing Government was elected and a strong group of Labor party women decided the Swedish model was the answer. The debate quickly became about trafficking and everybody agreed on this issue, that is, the debate was not about gender equality as it had been in Sweden.

In 2008 the Swedish model passed through the Parliament by MP's linking arguments to trafficking. In 2009, the new laws took effect.

The Government allocates annual funding of $10 million Kroners to projects, to NGOs, churches etc which provide exit support, job training, shelters. Procentre is a Government funded support centre for prostitutes. It also gets Government funding for special projects, eg last year it got $1 million to study men in prostitution.

In Oslo, there is funding for temporary shelters and training for foreign women to exit prostitution and there are shelters for battered women. For trafficked prostitutes, a 6 month reflection period of support is available.

January 10

Meeting with Bjorg Norli, Procentre, Oslo

Notes from meeting:

Procentre provides support services for prostitutes, employing social workers and health professionals. Ms Norli has worked here for 12 years and is a social worker. There are 22 staff at Procentre, mostly social workers who provide outreach services for women in prostitution. They go out on the streets during the week, finding the women and providing health care on the spot in some cases – they give out condoms, lubricants, advice and give the women information about the free health services they can access for testing, birth control pills, patches etc. There are 3 nurses and a doctor on 2 days per week.

Strict migration laws means migrant women are essentially trapped when they arrive in Oslo. They arrive illegally and they cannot get a job lawfully. They need money to survive. They are not eligible for social benefits. They have no choices and many end up working as street prostitutes.

There is a 6 month reflection period, during which funding and support is provided for victims of trafficking – they must give information to authorities about traffickers as part of the terms and they must return to their country of origin after 6 months. Rumours spread fast in this community and many are reluctant to come forward because they don't want to be sent home after 6 months.

There's no one size fits all – multiple approaches are needed for this complex issue.

Life has ‘marked’ these women from childhood often – they have grown up with violence, sexual abuse, lack of education, poverty. They have a hard time going in and will have a hard time leaving prostitution.

Violence Report 08-09 – Procentre questioned 90 people using its service and found that half had experienced violence at work and at home by their partners.

January 10  Toured red light area, Oslo
January 11  Travel Oslo to Copenhagen
January 12  Meeting Karoline Norman, Ministry of Justice Copenhagen and 2 officers from police ministry

Notes from meeting:

In 2007 there were 6000 prostitutes in Denmark with 2500 being foreign women. Prostitution is not criminalised in Denmark – the model here is more akin to the Dutch model. There is a sense that the Swedish Model may be pushing the sex trade across borders. Clearly traffickers set up business in more lenient countries. Given the high number of women in prostitution in Denmark, there is increasing pressure on Government to consider the Swedish Model as a solution, to decrease the numbers of women in prostitution and particularly those being trafficked.

A new minority Government has just been elected, a left leaning administration. There is an Inter-ministerial working group that meets regularly to deal with prostitution issues that cuts across Social Affairs, Justice, Taxation etc.

There are Government funded support services for women in prostitution - Pro Vest and the Nest – these groups have social workers and health professionals to provide services for them and referrals to support services.

The red light district is near the train station in Copenhagen and it is considered to be safe as it is well lit and there is a police presence there.
I was advised that the Ministry of Social Affairs and Integration deals with the social aspects and initiatives in relations to prostitution. The relevant contact person would be Ms. Line Karlskov Jensen ik@sm.dk (+45 4185 1097). I did not have time during this trip to meet Ms Karlskov.

January 13

Meeting with Lisa Cassina, Ministry for Gender Equality, Copenhagen, Denmark

Notes from meeting:

The Ministry for Gender Equality is responsible for the national action plan to combat trafficking in Human Beings. I met with the policy advisor in charge of trafficking.

In Denmark, prostitution is seen as a 'social' problem, with the need for Government assistance being recognised. However, there is a dilemma - how do you legalise a social problem that harms people? Do you legalise drugs because they harm people?

If you legalise, you say to men you have the legal right to buy women's bodies. Is this what we want in 2012? To generate more investment and interest in the sale of women’s bodies?

The harm to women is acknowledged by the Danish Government, with exit funding being allocated in the national budget. For the trafficking plan, $85.6m Danish Kroner has been allocated in the Budget over the next 4 years.

The newly elected Government (left leaning minority) has a new strategy to replace prior plan called ‘A different life’ and it includes:

(1) Exit strategy
(2) Then look at ban as in Sweden and
(3) Reinforce actions on trafficking – reflection period, 100 days then send home with a ‘prepared return’ eg funds, job training etc. New Government is going to strengthen protection for trafficking victims.

If the Swedish Model is imposed in Denmark in the future, the Government must acknowledge the obligation for social services for the women who want out – real exit funding is needed. $49m DK has been allocated in the budget for this end. Providing taxation amnesty is another way to provide incentives to leave the sex industry.

CARLES SEEKS SHELTER FOR WOMEN IN PROSTITUTION TO EXIT

4 April 2012

Fremantle Independent MP Adele Carles has called on MPs to stop playing politics over the issue of prostitution reform and back her call for a much-needed shelter for women who wish to exit the prostitution industry in WA.

Ms Carles says it appears likely the Prostitution Bill will pass and so she is seeking to amend the legislation to achieve something for women wanting to exit the industry.

"This is an industry that makes money out of the sale of women's bodies for men's sexual gratification and often involves violence and long term physical, psychological and emotional harm to women," Ms Carles said.

Ms Carles' 3 amendments recognise the harm to women caused by prostitution. Specifically, her 3 amendments seek to:

1. Remove the criminal focus from the women in prostitution.
   The amendment removes the imprisonment penalty from clause 10 and replaces it with a fine. This moves the Bill towards the Swedish model, which places the criminal focus on the buyer and removes it from the seller.

2. Ensure brothel owners do not employ under-age girls
   This amendment increases the penalty in clause 41(2) from 5 years to 14 years imprisonment for a brothel owner who employs a child.

3. Establishment of a women's shelter and services - Part 10 - Prostitution Account
   Ms Carles is seeking genuine exit funding in this legislation, with a commitment of at least $5 million for a women's shelter with running costs of $400,000 per annum to employ support staff, to support women in prostitution exit the industry. To exit prostitution, women need access to various services, including drug and alcohol rehabilitation, psychological counselling, medical treatment, education and re-training.
"These amendments are focused on supporting women who want to exit the industry and they move some way towards the Swedish model," Ms Carles said.

"There is an opportunity here to help women move out of the sex work industry through a properly funded shelter with support services," she said.

"I have met with Mission Australia, who already provide outreach services for youth and homeless people in Australia, about a business model that could be developed for this shelter in Perth."

"I call on all MPs, particularly those who are yet undecided (Janet Woollard, Peter Abetz and Graeme Jacobs) to support my amendments to provide a chance for women to extricate themselves from this harmful environment," the Fremantle Independent said.

Background

Adele Carles travelled to Scandinavia this year to speak with policy makers and social workers about the Swedish model, implemented in 1999, which criminalised the buyer rather than the seller of sex. The law was premised on the notion of gender equality and targets men, as the consumers, recognising that prostitution is violence against women. The Swedish model has been successful in halving street prostitution, reducing trafficking and changing attitudes towards women. Its success has led to its adoption in neighbouring European countries.

1pm: Met with Javy Chiu, Programme Officer and docent director, Hong Kong Arts Centre, 8/F, 2 Harbour Road, Wanchai, Hong Kong.

The Hong Kong Arts Centre (HKAC) is a self-funding organization with a mission to promote contemporary arts and culture within Hong Kong and beyond, established in 1977.

As a non-profit body, HKAC relies heavily on donations, rental income, arts course fees and box office income.

I undertook a tour of the facilities and discussed the role of the HKAC, particularly in the context of the construction of the Government-backed West Kowloon Cultural District.

HKAC is now 30 years old. The land was donated by the Government, and HKAC, as a not-for-profit, raised funds for the 10 storey building. It remains non-government funded, employing 80 people. Apart from art galleries, there is a cinema and small theatres which are hired out to earn income, and four upper stories are let as offices as well. HKAC runs a café, restaurant and bookshop, open seven days a week. There is a ground floor courtyard for outdoor concerts, public art, and lunchtime free concerts are held indoors for office-workers.

The focus is on Asian Contemporary Art with a flagship annual exhibition.

The public art is impressive. HK Government funded Jim Chan’s "Taking Off", in a bid to engage walkers and people above with art on top of the many walkways in HK. Seen from various levels and windows in the HKAC, Taking Off is a painted runway on the walkway roof, going over jutting out bumps and the natural roof. Engages the watcher beautifully. Chan later added a sticker mural of a landing jumbo jet on the HKAC window.

Each toilet in the HKAC is a major art installation, as part of the HKAC 30th Anniversary Designer Toilet Series. Compare the toilets in Perth's galleries, museums and theatres and you can see the potential to take the WA experience away from being just another office building privy. "Art Is Everywhere" is the HKAC theme.

The HKAC visit firmed up my research regarding the future of the East Perth Power Station - handing parts of it over to a non-profit group to make it work financially and artistically is a major option; builds on my research from the 798 Galleries in Beijing.

4pm: Visit Public Art in Metro project - Tin Hau station design. Public Art Hong Kong (PAHK) is a non-profit organization funded by the Y.K.Pao Foundation with an aim to nurture and promote public art in Hong Kong. It was incorporated in 2005 with the Hong Kong Arts Centre as its executing organization. PAHK has helped create a series of public art projects in Hong Kong’s Metro underground railway stations.

I inspected public art in the underground MRT railway stations. Very impressed with how heritage is valued and heritage pictures of nearby localities are placed right next to the route grids above the entry doors on the platforms. It really gives a sense of place to local people and visitors.

The dual signage in English and Chinese characters reminds me that our mono-language railway platforms in Perth aren't value-adding our multi-cultural society or welcoming the 20% growth in Chinese tourists.

I visited the Hong Kong Museum of History for meetings with Ms Susanna Siu and Ms Yee Ang of the Leisure and Cultural Services Department.

Address: 100 Chatham Road South, Tsim Sha Tsui, Kowloon, Hong Kong

Just 3 per cent of museum artefacts on show. Storage on the existing site is now full; they are looking for a fresh field site.

Constructed 1999, there are five separate museums.
The "The Hong Kong Story" is very impressive. Huge spaces - the main one caters for an 80 metre tree.

After 10 years of operation, they now want to refresh the museum. Dioramas are now old style; there is a need to digitalise and engage cyber communities.

Interesting - when they bring in exhibitions, eg from the British Museum, they always value add and mount in a Hong Kong context.

Approx budget of about $11m AUD. Wages and electricity/cleaning costs equally high, about $4m. Around 85 staff.

Meetings with the West Kowloon Cultural District Authority.
West Kowloon Cultural District Authority 29/F, Tower 6, The Gateway, 9 Canton Road, Tsim Sha Tsui, Kowloon, Hong Kong

Full briefings with planning and development representatives of the CEO’s office.

I also had an extensive meeting with the CEO, Michael Lynch, concerning policy, planning and budget issues. Mr Lynch was previously CEO of the Australia Council and was an advisor on the new WA Northbridge State Theatre Centre. My meetings were scheduled by the Hong Kong Economic and Trade Office, Government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region, director in Sydney, Steve Barclay.

West Kowloon is a 40 hectare development which will include 15 performing arts venues, retail, hotel and other office developments. The Hong Kong Government has made an initial investment of nearly $3b (AUD) through a redevelopment authority.

My interest in West Kowloon is very relevant to Perth in my role as Member for Perth and Shadow Minister for Arts and Culture, given the similar leading role EPRA (and the new MRA) are playing in developing Northbridge Link, the Waterfront, Riverside and the new State Museum at Northbridge.

West Kowloon is important for us in WA in appreciating the mistakes being made with the Waterfront project.

As with the Barnett Government currently, the Hong Kong Government originally persisted with a waterfront development concept which did not enjoy community support with poor engagement with stakeholders. To its credit, 10 years ago the Hong Kong Government decided to ditch their proposals and go back and genuinely consult. They’ve ended up with a Waterfront project that has stakeholder support.
Interesting parallels – the new West Kowloon has all the internal roads undergrounded; the tallest buildings are now at the very rear well away from the waterfront.

M+ or Museum Plus (tentative title) will be the main centre for Visual Culture in the West Kowloon Cultural District.

In 2005 the Museum Advisory Group proposed the following Mission Statement for M+:

“The mission of M+ is to focus on 20th and 21st century visual culture, broadly defined, from a Hong Kong perspective and with a global vision. With an open, flexible and forward-looking attitude, M+ aims to inspire, delight, educate and engage the public, to explore diversity and foster creativity.”

M+ is opening with more than 40,000 sqm floor area, of which 20,000 sqm will be exhibition space. The museum also develops a state of the arts offsite storage facility. Additional space and facilities are planned to be added at later stages. M+ will open after 2016.

Given the commitment for a new Museum in Perth I was briefed on the processes regarding the commissioning of the new M+, as well as the other major arts venues planned for West Kowloon.

I also visited the “temporary” Xiqu Theatre at West Kowloon, an 800 seater made entirely of bamboo for traditional Chinese Opera performances on the site of one of the future buildings. It was an extraordinary example of getting a venue built quickly and engaging with the community early on in what will be a ten year building site (rather than suffering a big black fence as we have on the Esplanade.)

REPORT to Department of Premier and Cabinet
Imprest claim for

Tony O’Gorman JP MLA
Member for Joondalup

14 January 2012 – 30 January 2012

On 14th January 2012, as Chairperson of the Parliamentary Community Development and Justice Standing Committee, with other members of this Committee I went to the USA to see first-hand how emergency crises are handled in another country.

With the USA experiencing two major catastrophes in recent times, in New Orleans and in New York, it seemed fitting that the Committee visit these two areas to have briefings on how the major emergency services actioned their emergency plans and what they have learnt from these situations.

It was very informative for the Committee to have met with the Americans as they offered their wisdom and knowledge for us to better prepare for an emergency situation in Australia, should the need arise. The people we met were very honest in their briefings and gave us the benefit of their hindsight into what worked well and what they would do differently in future.

Full information on the trip will be available in September when the Committee Report is tabled in Parliament.

As all my travel costs were met by the Parliamentary Committee, I applied for use of some of my Imprest account for flights so that my wife, Bernadette O’Gorman, could accompany me.

Yours sincerely

Tony O’Gorman

Dear Colin

Re: Imprest account - Trip to Ireland (Bantry, Cork City, Dublin), US (New York City and Syracuse) and Canada (Toronto)

I write to you with regards to a claim on my imprest account, the details of which are outlined below:

Purpose of the trip to Ireland, US and Canada:

Ireland
The Irish government's official Mental Health policy is "recovery based" as opposed to the "disability based" approach dominant in Australia, the United States and most developed English-speaking nations. This means the central aim of mental health services in Ireland is supposed to be assisting the mental health patient's natural process of recovery rather than managing their permanent disability. I met with mental health practitioners, advocates, media and the Irish Mental Health Minister to learn more about the "recovery" approach.

Canada
The Hon. Terence Young is an author and member of the Canadian Parliament and a long-standing advocate for full disclosure of therapeutic drug research and informed consent for all patients and their parents/carers.

I met with him and a number of other prescription drug safety advocates to learn about Canadian initiatives to improve disclosure and prescription drug safety.

USA
I was invited to attend and give an address to the 2012 Conference of the Center for the Study of Empathic Therapy, Education & Living in Syracuse, New York State. The conference was primarily for Psychiatrists, Psychologists and other stakeholders including policy makers with an interest in mental health. I addressed the conference on the International Developments in the ADHD Debate. In addition, I attended conference sessions with a primary focus on the effective delivery of mental health services.

Whilst in the US, I will also met with a number of clinicians, researchers, lawyers and activists with an interest in mental health in New York City and New York state.
